Office of Financial Aid & Scholarships: HEERF Quarterly Report, April 10, 2022

Background

The University of California, Santa Barbara signed and returned a Certification of Agreement with the Department of Education to accept funds from the American Rescue Plan (ARP), Public Law 117-2. The ARP established and funded the Higher Education Emergency Relief Fund III (HEERF III) to provide emergency financial aid grants to students and requires that institutions prioritize students with exceptional need, such as students who receive Pell Grants, in awarding financial aid grants to students.

These critical funds help eligible UC Santa Barbara students cover any component of their cost of attendance or for emergency costs that arose due to coronavirus, such as tuition, food, housing, health care (including mental health care) or child care.

Federal Emergency Aid Grant Reporting

As of January 1, 2022, a total of $58,748,496 has been allocated to UC Santa Barbara in higher education emergency relief funds for students.

The estimated number of students potentially eligible to be considered to receive Emergency Financial Aid grants in quarter 1 (January 2022 – March 2022) was 25,367. As of March 31, 2022, $2,299,069.90 was disbursed to 2,070 students.

Federal Emergency Aid Grant Criteria and Eligibility

Undergraduate Students – For awards made during this quarter, students were required to complete the “COVID ARP Consideration Form” in order to be considered for $1,000 awards. Financial aid applicants without demonstrated financial need, students who are ineligible to submit a financial aid application and students who chose not to submit a financial aid application were all encouraged to complete this form. In cases where the applicant subsequently met the original need-based criteria, which was used to award HEERF funds during Fall 2021, they received an award consistent with the financial need calculation described below. Additionally, students could consult with the Financial Crisis Response Team to be considered for awards of varying amounts.

Fall 2021 award criteria - UC Santa Barbara initially made federal HEERF funds available to students that had submitted a Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) or a California Dream Act Application (CADAA). Generally, HEERF funding was awarded based on financial need as determined by their financial aid application.

To determine the eligible population, UC Santa Barbara performed need calculations based on budget (cost of attendance) and the EFC from the aid application. Students were then placed into groups based on this need calculation. These groups included students with Pell-eligible EFCs, students with grant-eligible EFCs, and the students who had calculated need but would otherwise not be grant-eligible. Award amounts varied depending on which group a student fell into. Additionally, OFAS targeted specific populations that historically have shown exceptional needs. These included student parents, formerly incarcerated students, former foster youth, unaccompanied homeless youth and students with an approved dependency override appeal. Qualifying students in these groups received an additional amount of funding.

Graduate Students – Broad-based awards were made this quarter to students with demonstrated financial need, which was based on their financial aid application or affidavit. Limited awards were also made to students who submitted a supplemental application through the Graduate Division.

In all cases, financial aid grants were based on emergency costs that arose due to coronavirus or eligible expenses under the student's cost of attendance, such as food, housing, technology, health care, and childcare.
